Carrier Pidgeon

Other than always using Morse code, WW1 factions, especially British soldiers, utilized carrier pigeons. Pigeons were trained on where their home was. They were then transported to war frontlines or military establishments. Small pieces of paper were attached to the pigeon's leg so they can fly back with the message. This was mainly used to relay information from troops to commanders.

Imagine disliking my comment (skill issue). – DOMINIC IUGAN

I liked because I don't have a skill issue (like Kaylen) – ANONYMOUS

50 likes (too insane) – ANONYMOUS

Those people who disliked are cringe (they have a skill issue). – ANONYMOUS
