

Once upon a time, a wolf was eating an animal when suddenly a small bone got stuck in his throat. The wolf shouted in pain. He ran around groaning and asked all the other animals to help him get the bone out of his throat.

"I will give you anything!" begged the wolf. "Please give me a hand!" The crane decided to help. The crane asked the wolf to lie down. Then the crane put his long neck down the wolf's throat and grabbed the bone with his beak.

"Will you give me my reward now?" asked the crane. The wolf smiled and showed his teeth.

"Be happy, crane" said the wolf. "You put your head into the mouth of a wolf and took it out again safely. That should be reward enough."

Answer the following questions:

What was the wolf eating?

How do you know that the wolf was in pain?

How did the crane grab the bone in the wolf's throat?

What was the crane's reward?

Use the following words in your own sentences:

-Throat

-Pain

-Groan

-Reward

